

Process Paper

How did I choose my topic?

At the beginning I wasn't sure on what topic to do the project, I spent like two class periods searching for an interesting topic for me, when someone helped me and show me a lot of possible topics. After that I started to make a small research about different topics between them was the topic of jazz. After choosing between three different topics I decided to go on with the Jazz topic.

How did I conduct my research?

My research started at the history class, watching some videos and reading information on the internet to get an idea of how jazz works, and to see the background of it, how it was created, the difficulties it been through before being accepted, etc. Then I searched for pictures related to my topics and learn a bit about them.

How did I choose my category and how I create my project?

How I choose my category was very easy, I knew making an exhibition or a performance would be hard because I am not good with creativity and anything related to it, and also because I prefer to work by my own so I couldn't make a performance. The historical paper could also be a good idea what I wanted to do something more interesting and funnier than just write a paper, so I had the good idea of making a website. At first to create the project was a little bit hard because I didn't know how to use the program, but with the pass of the days I get used to it and it was easier for to use it. The idea of adding quotes on every page came from an example I saw of other website projects. Then I looked for all the information I knew I would need and once I had it, I started to create my website.

How does my topic relate to the theme?

The relationship between the theme and my topic may not be very clear at first, but each page suggests the idea of how segregation was causing so much trouble, and how jazz helped to end it. Jazz not only helped to end the segregation, which was a big issue, it also encouraged women to fight for their rights.
